GO GLOBAL: BREAK STEREOTYPES

Posted on April 9, 2021 by Eddie

What have mission, New Testament Studies and church leadership in Scotland got to do with each other? With added Lord of the Rings and Gaelic...
Category: Observations

Alistair Wilson is a man of many parts; he lectures at Edinburgh Theological Seminary, and is also a church leader and a missionary. In this interview he talks about the way in which the different facets of his life inform and strengthen each other. Not only that, but a global approach to Christianity helps to break down stereotypes both at home and abroad. The video and podcast last 35 minutes.
