WEDNESDAY MORNING

Posted on November 5, 2008 by Eddie

Category: Observations

I'm in the Philippines for meetings about how to communicate the work of Bible translation to the church worldwide. Though, looking out of the meeting room window to the wonderful mountain scenery, I could almost be on holiday. The meetings start this morning, and I'm desperately trying to stay awake after only an hour or so's sleep last night.I'll blog something about the meetings once we get into them - in the meantime, here is another tourist photo of a coffee house, which`sounds like an online auction site.

