NORMAL SERVICE WILL BE RESUMED...

Posted on April 5, 2022 by Eddie

I might be quiet for a while!
Category: Observations

This post is by way of an apology to regular readers. Normally, at this point, I would be writing extra posts so that there was content coming out through the Easter break when I will be away for a few days. However, I seem to have Covid (or something very like it according to the new symptoms listed by the NHS).

I'm not particularly ill, but I am very tired and I don't seem to be able to concentrate very well, which makes reading and writing somewhat troublesome. This means that over the next few weeks there are likely to be a number of gaps in my posting, but I hope to get back to normal as soon as possible.

This is also the time when I need to be training the hardest for my summer races, so I am more than a little frustrated and just a tad anxious.