If you are looking for suggestions for Christmas presents this year, you might want to look at the selection I've put in our online shop. This is a selection from the books, movies and music that I've been exposed to over the last year. There might just be something that would be good for someone you know. If, by any chance, you were thinking of getting us something; the Amazon wishlist in our sidebar is full of good stuff that we would like (they might be good for anyone else you know who has our strange taste in reading).
