ATHEISTS NEED JESUS

Posted on December 28, 2008 by Eddie

Category: Observations

I've long admired Clive James as a humourous writer and presenter. His piece on 'A Point of View' this morning was typically thoughtful, but on a rather surprising subject - the importance of Jesus Christ to atheists.Â It is well worth listening to from two points of view; firstly he has some good things to say and secondly, I think that it is too easy for Evangelicals to miss some important parts ofÂ Jesus teaching which are obvious to others. Jesus is bigger than our theology.

You can listen to his ten minute essay here (though it may vanish in seven days).