GOD CAN'T BE PROVED

Posted on January 22, 2009 by Eddie

Categories: Church: UK, Observations

The British Advertising Authority have decided that questions of the existence or otherwise of God 'cannot be objectively verified'. So, even though over three hundred complaints were made about it, the atheist bus campaign can go ahead. Quite right too. The Times has the full story. Sorry, this happened yesterday, but I'm running slow (like the buses).

Mind you, I don't suppose God is worried one way or another whether the ASA think that his existence can be proved or not.