Zondervan have put the Genesis volume of their new illustrated commentary series online. I've not had time for more than a cursory look at it, but what I've seen is very impressive. I'm also more than impressed with the interface that they use for showing the book, it's very clever. It is only available till the end of October, so you'll have to hurry if you want to read the whole thing. Presumably the flash animation below will vanish in ten days!

There are more details on the Zondervan website.
