Sue returned from Madagascar over three weeks ago, but in that time we've more or less passed like ships in the night, with me being in Africa for a week and Sue spending most of the rest of the intervening time with her mum who is very ill. However, we've managed to grab a few days together and I've finally got to see Sue's photographs. I'm sorry, the names on the pictures don't convey much and I suspect that we won't get round to putting captions on them for a while.
