AIR TRAVEL IN AFRICA

Posted on October 27, 2006 by Eddie

Category: Africa

The Daily Telegraph has an article on air travel in Africa that might explain why Sue and I are always amused when people complain about how bad Heathrow is. It will no doubt raise a few wry smiles from people who have used African airports.

> With the possible exceptions of South African Airways and Kenya Airways, hardly a single airline comes up to acceptable standards.
>
> Many of Africaâ€™s airports are so terrible that you donâ€™t know whether to laugh or cry. Every airport in the developed world tries to streamline check-in, security and immigration procedures. But African airports do the exact opposite. Everything is duplicated and multiplied.