LANGUAGE AND POLITICS

Posted on October 27, 2006 by Eddie

Category: Language and Society

The BBC has an interesting article on the way that language is influencing the way that people vote in the Democratic Republic of Zaire. It is hard for people who live in broadly monolingual situations to understand the way in which language diversity can impact every aspect of life in countries like the DRC.