IT'S A SMALL WORLD

Posted on November 22, 2006 by Eddie

Category: Observations

I'm sitting in the Air France lounge in Bangkok on my way home. I'll post some reflections, pictures and even a video about my trip when I get back. In the meantime, I just picked up a copy of Time magazine and was pleased to see that Loc8tor is listed as one of their products of the year.

Why am I pleased? Because much of the development work was done by a good mate of mine in Southampton and I've watched the progress on this amazing device over the past few years. I've seen it work - you can find a cat in a house in Southampton! So, here I am, in Asia, reading an American magazine, with a review of a product developed round the corner from our house in Southampton. Amazing!