I very much enjoyed this article from my friend Antony Billington of the London Institute for Contemporary Christianity.

> Many religions begin by telling men and women what they should do; Christianity begins with what God has done. The shorthand word for this is â€˜gospelâ€™, referring not to a set of good instructions or a piece of good advice, but to the good news of what God himself has achieved â€“ for me, for us, for the world â€“ in Christ.
