WHAT NEXT FOR KOUYA CHRONICLE?

Posted on July 31, 2010 by Eddie

Category: Computing/Internet

I've been considering making a few changes to Kouya Chronicle and I wondered what you, my reader, think about them.

1. Should we change the look? Over time the layout has become rather cramped and I wonder whether I should change the theme and get rid of some of the side-bar content.
2. What about the title? We have to keep the kouya.net address, but perhaps it is time to ditch the name "Kouya Chronicle". This made sense when we worked with the Kouya people, but that is rapidly vanishing into history and perhaps we should come up with a new name. Do you have any thoughts?
3. What about the Content? I tend to post a mixture of original content and links to stuff that I find elsewhere. To be honest, I'd rather do all original content, but I'm just not creative enough. This is pretty much a niche blog (though I'm not entirely sure what the niche is) and I don't want to step too far outside of the sort of material that we cover. Would you like more musings on the nature of mission? More about Bible Translation? More family news and stuff?

If you have any constructive thoughts about what we could do with this blog, it would be good to hear them.

For those who came late to this party and don't know much about our work with the Kouya, here are a few photos.