FACING THE CHALLENGE OF TELEVISION

Posted on January 10, 2007 by Eddie

Categories: Mission, Reviews

David Couchman has changed the look of his blog - it may seem familiar to Kouya Chronicle readers.

David has also released a course called Facing the Challenge of Television which is well worth looking at. The website says "We spend twelve years of our lives in front of the television. It shapes what we think and how we live. This new course is designed to help us think through how it's influencing us - and how we can use it positively."

The course is ideal for small groups and can be downloaded (for Â£9.99) from the website. One chapter and the leaders' guide can be downloaded free if you want to see what the course is like.