MARCH OF THE PENGUINS

There is a seminar being run at the centre where I am staying. Most of the particpants are from a nomadic group who live across a number of West African countries. This evening, they are relaxing watching the film, March of the Penguins. Watching a movie about the Antarctic with a group of nomadic herders from the African savanah is one of the odder juxtapositions that my life has thrown up lately.

For the record, the film is stunning to watch, but the commentary is far too romanticised for me. If you haven't yet seen it, you can get the dvd from Amazon.Â March of the Penguins - Luc Jacquet
