CHRISTIAN CHARITIES

Posted on February 10, 2007 by Eddie

Categories: Observations, Politics

There is a good article in the Daily Telegraph today looking at the discrimination that faces Christian Charities as they try and serve the community.

> Â But it turns out that, while the works of faith groups are sometimes welcomed â€“ and almost always needed â€“ the faith of faith groups is too much for the authorities. Thus if a Christian group prefers to employ Christians to do its work, that is discriminatory. If it offers prayer as one of the activities available to its clients, that is anti-diversity.