GET YOUR WALLET OUT!

Posted on June 8, 2011 by Eddie

Category: Observations

As you might know, I'm in training for the High Wycombe half-marathon which takes place in about five weeks' time. I'm hoping that kind people (that means you) will be willing to sponsor me and to raise money for a translation and literacy project in Ghana.

I'll be posting more details later, but in the meantime, you can wander along to my donations page and sign up to give away some of your hard-earned cash. Sadly, the system we are using can only take donations from the UK. Brits should feel free to contribute twice as much in order to make up for the international readership!

Thanks folks.