STORIES

Posted on May 2, 2007 by Eddie

Category: Language and Society

One of the things which links my interests in Bible translation and missional church issues in the West is the power of stories. Story telling is a wonderful way to introduce people to the Scriptures in a minority language or to the claims of Christ in post-modern Britain. I'm interested to see the launch of a new blog dedicated to story telling in a Christian context. There isn't much posted yet, but I look forward to good things from Blogim Stori (with a name like that, how could it fail?).