FACING THE CHALLENGE OF OTHER FAITHS

Posted on May 9, 2007 by Eddie

Category: Reviews

Focus have just released the latest in their Facing the Challenge series. Facing the Challenge of Other Faiths is an excellent study guide for groups and individuals and I'd strongly encourage you to take a look at it.

In eight fifty-minute sessions, the course covers:

- Only one way? What does the Bible say?
- Many faiths - are we in a new and unusual situation, or is it normal to be surrounded by people of other faiths?
- A question of truth - does the claim that there's only one God, and that we can only come to this God through Jesus Christ 'make sense'?
- How intolerant is that? What should our attitude be towards people of other faiths - and how should we respond to claims that we're arrogant and intolerant?
- What on Earth is God doing? An overview of what the Bible says about God's mission to the world - and our part in his mission
- The world on our doorstep - how do we encounter people of other faiths today?
- Sharing our faith - is faith a private matter, or should we expect to be able to share what we believe in public?
- Called to suffer? What should we do when the 'laws of the land' cut across our freedom to share our faith?

You can 'try before you buy,' by downloading session 4, 'How intolerant is that?' free of charge, from: www.facingthechallenge.org/intolerant.pdf

You can also download the introduction to the Leaders' Guide free, from: www.facingthechallenge.org/faithscourseintro.pdf