There is a very interesting article on ChurchRelevance about how young non-believers view evangelicals. The article comes from the US and reflects the situation there. The sad thing, is that I think it would make even harder reading if the survey had been conducted in the UK.

> Non-Christians aged 16-29 years old were asked, â€œWhat is your current perception of Christianity?â€
>
> - 91% said antihomosexual
> - 87% said judgmental
> - 85% said hypocritical
> - 78% said old-fashioned
> - 75% said too involved in politics
> - 72% said out of touch with reality
> - 70% said insensitive to others
