IMPRESSIVE BUILDINGS

Posted on January 14, 2014 by Eddie

Category: Musing on General Themes

Last night we went for a short walk. It was wonderful to see the Hagia Sophia and the Blue Mosque (above). Even without these two buildings, Istanbul seems to be full of very impressive mosques.

This brings me back to a question I blogged on years ago.

It seems that amongst all religious traditions, Protestant Evangelicals are the least interested in the architecture of the buildings they use for worship. Is this a good thing?