A PERSONAL THEOLOGY OF MISSION

For my course at Spurgeons College I was recently asked to write a personal theology of Christian mission. I've uploaded the essay here in pdf form in case anyone is interested in reading it. It certainly isn't a detailed and thorough academic theology (as the person doing the marking kindly pointed out :-)) but it does give an insight into what it is we do and why we do it. It's double spaced and about fourteen pages long and has quite a few references if you are interested in following it up. It would be interesting to read any comments or thoughts you have - especially if there are things you feel I haven't included that I should have. Apects of a Personal Theology of Mission.pdf
