DIFFERENT BUT ALIKE

Posted on August 4, 2014 by Eddie

Category: Observations

I don't know if anyone else has noticed this, but it seems to me that the more insistent people are on being Protestant, the more likely they are to also insist that people should use the Authorised Version of the Bible. Likewise, those who are the most vociferous about their Roman Catholicism are the most likely to want to use Latin for the liturgy.

In a recent post, Archdruid Eileen had a little bit of fun with the language issue, but made a serious point too:

> But the history of the Church, and the fact of the Incarnation, says to me that you don't worry about the language that much.Â

Of course, whatever your personal view regarding the language for worship or the Scriptures; there are still millions of people who don't have a single word of of the Bible available to them. I guess we'd better start rolling out the Latin classes, then!