CHURCH IS WRONG

Posted on November 25, 2007 by Eddie

Category: Church: UK

Following on from my post about not going to Church while I'm on the road, I was intrigued to read Justin's post on the Radical Congruency blog. He goes a stage further than me and more or less argues that church as we know it is all wrong.

> For a long time, Iâ€™ve believed that churches should move beyond the worship service to other methods of communal and spiritual practice. Itâ€™s been easy for me to believe this, being in a church that doesnâ€™t really have a worship service.
>
> For a long time, Iâ€™ve believed that congregationalism - the idea that weâ€™re one group of Christians and you over there are another church, a separate group - is wrong. Itâ€™s been hard for me to believe this, being in a church that is just such a separate group