DOG BISCUITS AND LIFE

Posted on January 20, 2006 by Eddie

Category: Humour

Most of us have different parts of our life which are lived more in parallel. The people at work don't know our friends at home and so on and it isn't always comfortable when two different domains come into contact. I had a small and rather embarssing demonstration of that this morning in the gymn. I took off my waterproof and swung it into the locker in a dramatic fashion, sending dog biscuits shooting across the weightlifting area. Must remember to empty my pockets next time I come back from walking the dog.