SURELY NOT!

Posted on January 11, 2008 by Eddie

Category: Politics

It's hard to keep up with the news when I'm on the road, what with work to do and emails to answer; not to mention blogging and facebookery. This time I seem to have got completely isolated because I just thought I saw a story about the UK shipping a terminally ill woman back to Africa because her visa expired. Of course a civilised country like the UK would never do that, we are hospitable and caring - aren't we?