ACADEMIC AND RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

Posted on January 19, 2008 by Eddie

Category: Church: World

One large evangelical seminary has made a stupendous bid for academic and religious freedom by shaking off the habit of students wearing robes and mortar boards at graduation (because they have Roman Catholic roots). This glorious bid for freedom involves the wearing of...Â no you have to read it for yourselves. Make sure you read the comments too.

There are times when my free church/baptist-ish identity makes me want to squirm!