Three excellent videos that are well worth watching.

I find it ironic, that when we want to talk about reading the Bible with a focus on mission, we wrap it up in an obscure title like "missional hermeneutics".

These three videos (initially developed for seminary students) from Brian Russell do a great job introducing this theme. They take about an hour to watch/listen to, but that is time well spent for anyone who is involved in evangelism or mission.

If you receive this blog post by email and the videos don't show up, you can find them here.

Brian's excellent bookÂ (re)Aligning with God: Reading Scripture for Church and World will be available in December and you should put it on your Christmas wish list!
