WE NEED YOUR SUPPORT

Posted on December 4, 2015 by Eddie

If you regularly read our blog posts and appreciate them, please consider supporting us (and you don't even have to spend any extra money).
Category: Computing/Internet

They say that you shouldn't talk about religion, politics or money in polite society. Then again, I've neverÂ pretendedÂ to belong to polite society, so I feel free to break the rules. This blog talks about religion (a lot) and politics (a fair bit), so now I'm going to talk about money (which I do from time to time).

As you may know, Sue and I do not receive a salary for our work with Wycliffe Bible Translators and Global Connections. We are very grateful to the churches and individuals who pray for us and who contribute to our financial support. It's over thirty years since either of us received a regular salary and God has provided for us, through the kindness of some generous people.

Over the years, writing this blog has developed into an integral part of our work. It started off as a way of sharing family news and updates, but it has evolved into something rather different. Most working days, we writeÂ 300-1,000 words about world mission, Bible translation or something of that ilk. Many of you have been kind enough to say that you appreciateÂ the way in which KouyanetÂ raises issues and makes you think about mission in different ways. However, as well as the mental activity of writing a new post every day, running Kouyanet does involve a regular financial outlay. If you are a regular Kouyanet reader, would you be willing to contribute to our financial support? The good news is that you can do this without actually spending any extra money.

If you are planning to buy any Christmas presents through Amazon, would you consider using the search box below? If you do, the folks at Amazon will give us something like 5p for every pound you spend, which will go somewhere to covering my heavy book habit.

If you would like to support us in a more concrete fashion, you could buy one of the items on our Amazon wishlist or perhaps make a one of gift, or even sign up to support us regularly.

That's the commercial break over, normal service will be resumed on Monday.

If you receive this blog post by email and the Amazon search box doesn't show up, please visit Kouyanet to find the original post.Â