IT'S SUNDAY, BUT JESUS IS COMING

Posted on March 22, 2008 by Eddie

Category: Church: World

I've been trying to think of a good post for the Easter season but failing miserably. However, Think Christian put me on to this excellent piece by James Watkins.

> Author Tony Campolo's most famous message declares, "It's Friday, but Sunday's Comin'." But what happens when it's Sunday and we're still facing death and despair?
>
> Jesus has been unjustly charged and condemned to die. It's Friday, but Sunday's comin'. The religious and political tyrants have stopped His rebellous message. It's Friday, but Sunday's comin'. He has been brutally beaten, stripped, and nailed to a cross. It's Friday, but Sunday's comin'. Christ is sealed in a tomb, his dead body guarded by Roman soldiers. It's Friday, but Sunday's comin'.
>
> The message builds to a powerful conclusion when the pastor simply shouts, "It's Friday!" and the congregation responds, "But Sunday's comin".
>
> It's Sunday in the United States and 4,000 unborn children will be aborted tomorrow. One out of four children will be sexually or physically abused. Five thousand teens will attempt suicide; thirteen will succeed. Sixteen young adults will be murdered. Over two thousand unmarried teens will get pregnant..... Read more