TIMELY NEWS

I don't have time to write much this morning, but I didn't want to allow two important timely news items to go un-remarked.

- Better Bibles Blog highlights the start of a new translation into Canadian English, with a very interesting group of scholars.
- Doug Chaplin is the first with the news that NT Wright will soon be made an Archbishop.

It isn't specifically church news, but I'm delighted to see the Guardian's report that Carla Bruni-Sarkozy, the first lady of France, has been appointed by Gordon Brown to spearhead a government initiative aimed at injecting more style and glamour into British national life.
