GOD MADE AFRICANS TO BE AFRICANS

Posted on August 14, 2017 by Eddie

Christianity isn't African, but it isn't European or American either.
Category: Africa

One last comment on the African and Western Christianity thing that ran on the blog last week. I came across this short blog post by an African woman writer that I think is brilliant.

> I believe that culture is Godâ€™s idea, ethnicity is part of Genesis 1, God created all human beings in his image, but he also designed us to be uniquely different. It is Godâ€™s creation and imago Dei, and itâ€™s beautiful the way He made it. My culture is beautiful, my African-ness and my Malawian-ness is a beautiful thing hand woven by God. When he redeems us, I believe even the things that make me unique as a person are also redeemed the same thing with my tribe and culture (Redeemed in the sense of how I look at them through a biblical lens).

You really should read the whole thing.

Go on, what are you waiting for? - Read it!

While you are here...

Most working days, I try to blog on something related to world mission that is interesting or thought provoking (with the odd detour into book reviews or running). Sue and I don't receive salaries for our work with Wycliffe and we depend on the goodwill of churches and friends to keep us going. If you enjoy this blog and find it helpful, it would be great if you could help meet some of the running costs. You can make a one off donation through Wycliffe by clicking here.

If you have a PayPal account, you can also make a donation by clicking on this button.

Another way to support us is by buying things from our Amazon wish list, which you can find here. Most of these are work-related, but there is some fun stuff too.