OCMS

Posted on July 17, 2008 by Eddie

Category: Christian Life

I spoke at the Wednesday morning chapel at OCMS in Oxford yesterday. OCMS is an amazing international community of mission scholars. They are based in an old church building on the Woodstock Road, with the library and study areas being in the nave of the church. It's all very cramped, but the atmosphere is great. Getting into a discussion about the Biblical basis of mission around a table with people from five nationalities was quite literally a foretaste of heaven.